USC Legends Non-Profit	100	USC Legends is a non-profit organization to help fundraise for their teams or school. This organization does NOT pay workers, but the gains the workers make they get a donation. In the 2016-17 USC Football Season, we were given a concession stand to sell the product that we were given. Before every home game, my basketball teammates and I had to show up to The Colosseum two hours before the football game. We had to prepare and organize the food and drinks. At time I would be the cashier or runner for the cashier. After the day/game is done we'd clean up the stand. I learned how to communicate with strangers and working a in managed time.	What I learned is extremely important because I can prepare for future jobs. For example being the cashier, I learned how to interact with customers. I learn how have time managing from when they order to the time it has to be ready.	This opportunity helped me because I am prepared to communicate with other. I plan in the future to apply for a job that has a cashier position because during this organization I learned and semi mastered to be a cashier.

PATH Care Packages	1	People Assisting The Homeless (PATH) is a non-profit organization that helps out the homeless during the holidays. In the care package had to include travel size toothpaste, travel size toothbrush, travel size shampoo, one pair of socks, deodorant, and dental floss. All of the items listed above had to go in a Ziploc bag where all items fit and write a little inspirational letter. I learned that it's amazing given to the less fortunate when it's the time of giving.	What I learned is that it's a good thing to share the little things we have with the less fortunate. Seeing them at their lowest is something now amazing to be at, but just gifting them a pair of socks or toothpaste can change them a day at a time.	It changed me by seeing their perspective, how it would feel to be in their situation, and how to be grateful with little things in our life. I plan to share my experience that I felt when donating and writing an inspirational quote for my package to my younger peers to encourage them to donate and every package makes a difference.
Red Cross	94	Red Cross is a humanitarian organization that helps out people in a natural disaster or emergency assistance to those in need. I attended meetings during my lunch time at Mr. Oh room every wednesday. I learned about blood types and how every person has a different blood type. Another thing I learned was how to properly perform CPR and officially became certified.	When learning CPR and being certified it can be a key factor to not only for myself, but for my community and the people surrounding me. I can help out citizen around me incase of a hazard or a problem.	It changed me by knowing the required information that red cross member need. I plan to share my knowledge from Red Cross to my family member and my peers.

Red Cross Awareness Fair	6	The Red Cross Awareness Fair is about being awareness to families in my community on to properly prepare for an earthquake or fire. During the fair, I took note of volunteers, answer guests questions, and translate for Spanish speaking parents. I learned that every family should have an emergency back that contain helpful materials need after a hazard.	What I learned is important because I can share what I learned with my family and properly prepare for an emergency. As a family, we can have a luggage with items we need after an emergency.	It changed me by knowing how to be prepared for an emergency. I can share this with my future family and my fellow peers I meet along the way.
Heal the Bay @ Dockweiler Beach	5	Heal the Bay is non-profit organization keep oceans and beaches clean. In October, my peers and I went to Dockweiler Beach to collect trash on the shore. We were informed that the trash that we were picking up was a huge part of Koreatown. One of the pipes connected to the beach which made up technically collect our own trash. Later, we found out how negatively the trash affects the marine life.	It is important to know about the marine life and how people litter can highly affect the marine life. The beach is for everyone and as that should go for all that we should all take care of the beaches and reduce the littering.	Now, I try not to litter a lot and save my trash for the trash can. I can show my peers and we all can take action and reduce the trash we throw in the floor that can affect the marine life.

Pumpkin Patch	8	Pumpkin path is part of the organization called Rotary Interact provide support and guidance. Rotary Interact are self-governing and self-supporting. Club membership varies greatly. Clubs can be either one gender or mixed. Either bi, medium, large size of club. What I did in the pumpkin patch was help set you the food to serve the customers. Also, I will cash them out and take their pumpkin to their car. I learned how to manage being in a cash register and communicating with others I don't communicate on a daily base.	What I learned how to manage my time with taking the pumpkin to our customers car and how to do all that in less than 5 minutes. Organizing materials can be a keep fact in my current life but my future in the workplace.	It changed me by knowing how to communicate with others and also strengthen my organizing skills. I can use the little skills I learned a put it in my further work place and have the skill ready to go
